

March 18-19, 2009
Mandarin Oriental Hotel
Washington, D.C.

David Hogan

Senior Vice President and Chief Information Officer National Retail Federation

David Hogan was named Senior Vice President and Chief Information Officer for the National Retail Federation (NRF), the world's largest retail trade association, in 2002. He directs numerous internal and retail industry IT initiatives and manages NRF's CIO Council, a committee of retailing's most prominent chief information officers. Dave also provides oversight for the Association for Retail Technology Standards (ARTS), dedicated to creating an international, barrier-free technology environment for retailers.

Hogan is a former member of the NRF's CIO Council and has spent his entire career in retail. Prior to joining NRF, he served as Vice President and CIO of international retailer, Duty Free Americas. He has held senior level positions with The Limited Inc. serving as Business Unit CIO for their Lane Bryant division and Vice President of MIS for specialty footwear retailer, The Kobacker Company.

He is a 1982 graduate of The Ohio State University and earned his MBA degree at the University of Dayton.

Presented by

In cooperation with

Economist Intelligence Unit

The Economist